PRAYED NOT TO SEE MORNING

Pitiful State Of Stomach Invalid
Who Recovered After Taking Black-Draught.

Elmsford, N. Y.—"Only a few months ago, I prayed I would not see morning," says Mrs. Charles E. Jones of this town. "For five long years, I was an invalid, and tried everything I heard of to obtain relief. My husband spent over four hundred dollars trying to get me well.
I read in one of the Ladies' Birthday
Almanacs about Theodor's Black-Draught, and decided to try it. I took five packages, and am able to say that I can sleep like a baby, and eat, and drink anything I want, and walk two miles, easily. Feel better than I have for years.
Before taking Black-Draught, I was troubled with my heart, had indigestion and constipation. Twice, I was given up to die, but thanks to Black-Draught I did not.
I cannot say too much for Black-Draught."
For indigestion, constipation, headache, dizziness, malaria, and all disorders of the liver and stomach, Theodor's Black-Draught has proved itself a safe, reliable and valuable remedy.
It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients and acts gently, yet safely. Good for young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.
Get a package of Black-Draught today. Only one cent a dose. EB.

THE HAYTI HERALD

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY WILLIAM YORK, EDITOR AND PUB.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.00 A YEAR, CASH IN ADVANCE
ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE, HAYTI, MISSOURI, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER
Office in City Hall, Southwest Room, Hayti, Pemiscot County, Missouri

"IT'S DIFFERENT."

Last week a good lady whose family had received the Herald a year without paying for it, after we had stopped the paper in compliance with the postal laws, came in and said they did not want the paper any longer because it carried saloon ads, that they were very temperate, and, while they did not blame us and there was no ill will, the family did not want that kind of a paper. The good lady, whose husband used to be a business man, was asked if he ever refused to sell a saloon man a bill of goods, or, in fact, anything he wanted to buy? Of course she answered "no." Then she was told that a newspaper's space was its stock in trade, just the same as the merchant's goods, and that it was only by the sale of this space that the publisher could live. The good lady was next asked if she and her husband ever refused to read the large city papers because they carried saloon or beer advertising, and again she answered "no." But of course the large city papers are different, because you are not acquainted with the editors and publishers and they are not home people to publish all your birth notices, funeral notices, obituaries, and, in fact, every time you come or go or have an ache or pain, the large city papers do not know it, and they do not tell about your visitors, your business deals and a thousand other things your home paper is expected to do. Why, we know of a certain preacher who has been clandestinely receiving a $10 check at regular intervals from the Lynch Distilling Company, St. Louis, and who has never refused to accept all the saloon money he could get. In fact, we do not know of a time when either the preachers or the church people have refused to accept the saloon man's money and they were looked to for regular donations. Again, we know of hundreds of suppers, dinners, bazaars, etc., being given by the different religious and church organizations and auxiliaries, and we have yet to hear of one of them refusing to sell to the saloon man or to snub him when he attends their pay gatherings. But with the little home paper it is different—if the home paper can make an honest dollar to feed, clothe and educate little children and make them useful citizens, it must leave the churches, the preachers and the other religious organizations to accept the saloon man's money, but the editor must not touch the filthy stuff!

Is that consistent? Why is the newspaper man so different to any other business man? Why is it that the churches, preachers, religious organizations, etc., are free to accept the saloon man's money and the newspapers are not? We would like to have an answer to this question, if there is an answer—we want to know why the business of a newspaper should be so different from any other business.

CONDEMNED FOR RIGHT.
As time goes on we are becoming more and more firmly convinced that if a man desires to share the good will and favor of a certain element of people in this country he must first become an all around liar, and proficient in deceit and hypocrisy. During the six years' life of the Herald it has never been called upon to make a retraction and no word or statement it has ever published has been disproved. Besides, the editor has never been sued for libel or played the part of a hypocrite. This being so, those who condemn us do so because we are right and because we tell the truth.

We are not complaining. We have always been taught that right and truth would win. It may be persecuted for awhile and the man who persists may be made to suffer temporarily, but if he has the courage to continue his course he will be amply repaid in the end for all he has suffered and all he has lost.

We have at all times kept a standing challenge, open to any one, at any and all times, to dispute or disprove any statement made in the Herald. This challenge has never been accepted. Our space is open to any one, at any and all times. This is as fair as we know how to offer, and we shall always feel and believe we are right until shown otherwise.

We were talking with a prominent business man from St. Louis Saturday night, about the financial condition of the country, and from his conversation we would judge he was pretty close in touch. He said the chief cause of the great depression was the fact that the banks have quit loaning money and all the business now has to be carried on on the money of the people that happened to be in circulation. He said that no security or collateral, however good, was sufficient to get money, that the banks had simply refused to loan and their millions of dollars are lying idle. This is pretty bad. The banks, of course, are the mediums through and by which money comes into circulation, and when the banks refuse to circulate the millions of dollars in their vaults a depression is bound to be felt. This is a hard matter to remedy by legislation, and it is such as this that is creating in this country a great feeling towards government ownership—that is, the government and the people will become business partners, and the speculators will be eliminated from nearly all business transactions.

In a legal sense, a publication to become a newspaper must first have a general circulation, and then it must be entered at the post office as second class matter. Notices required by law to be published in a newspaper must, if the law is complied with, be published in a newspaper having a general circulation, and, to be a newspaper, it must have complied with all the requirements imposed upon it by law. The courts have held legal notices not published in a newspaper having a general circulation to be invalid, as the purpose of the law in requiring a publication to be made is for the general information of the public. Therefore, "The Critic," a circular printed and mailed in this city, is not qualified to publish any notice required by law to be published, for the reason that it has never been entered at the postoffice, and such a notice so published could not be legal. The same would apply to a "Bank Statement," because a "Bank Statement" is required by law to be published, and is, therefore, a legal publication.

The Turncoat sheet down the street, alias "The Critic," never mentions the Herald's name, but now and then it makes the mistake to swipe some stuff that has at first been stolen from us by some other paper. Only a few weeks ago we noticed three paragraphs in that sheet that was originated and published by the Herald.
